About JANE

Innovation

Entrepreneurship

Globalization

Japan needs to develop new industries with a special focus on the greater strategic utilization of information technology. It is a crucial step for Japan to regain global competitiveness and continue its economic growth into the future in the face of such structural problems as a shrinking and aging population. The establishment of policies and systems to support this development is an urgent issue for the country.

The Japan Association of New Economy (JANE) is dedicated to performing policy advocacy from a private sector perspective to contribute to addressing this issue, while also providing a platform for information sharing and networking among members.

To that end, JANE works to achieve the triple objectives of promoting innovation, entrepreneurship and globalization. As an organization with a responsibility towards the socioeconomic future of Japan, JANE, with its member companies pioneering tomorrow's technologies and services, continues to challenge the status quo and advocates a vision of the future beyond conventional thinking.
